The National Retail Federation (NRF) estimates that back-to-school spending for K-12 and college students will total $80.7 billion this season, down 2.5% from the $82.8 billion spent in 2018, according to its own release. The NRF is forecasting a drop in total spending due to a decline in households with children in elementary school through high school. Families with children in grades K-12 plan to spend an average of $696.70, up from $684.79 last year. College students and their families plan to spend an average of $976.78, up from $942.17 last year.

CoreLogic reported that the share of U.S. home mortgage loan payments that are 30 days or more past due stood at 3.6% in April 2019, its lowest level in more than 20 years, according to 24/7 Wall St. The serious delinquency rate (90 days or more past due) stood at 1.3% in April, down from 1.9% a year ago. That particular rate fell in all 50 states in April. The foreclosure inventory rate stood at 0.4% in April, its lowest level in at least 20 years.

Thursday, July 18, 2019

The National Association of Realtors reported that the dollar volume of homes purchased by foreigners from April 2018 through March 2019 plunged 36% compared to the same period a year earlier, according to CNBC. Foreigners bought 183,100 properties with a total dollar value of $77.9 billion, down from 266,800 properties valued at $121.0 billion in the prior period. Demand from Chinese buyers has declined notably due to the tariff conflict between the U.S. and China, which commenced in March 2018.

As of 7/10/19, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) had approved 14 new drugs so far this year, according to FiercePharma. That number lagged the 20 approvals at this point last year. The FDA approved an all-time high of 59 new drugs in 2018. The director of the FDA's Center for Drug Evaluation and Research, Janet Woodcock, M.D., recently stated that the elevated numbers of new approvals would be maintained or even increase. Dr. Woodcock believes that the drug industry is just beginning to see the fruits of the human genome sequencing.
