NAV returns are based on the fund's net asset value which represents the fund's net assets (assets less liabilities) divided by the fund's outstanding shares. Market Price returns are determined by using the midpoint of the national best bid offer price ("NBBO") as of the time that the fund's NAV is calculated. Returns are average annualized total returns, except those for periods of less than one year, which are cumulative. A fund's performance may reflect fee waivers and expense reimbursements, absent which performance would have been lower.

Risk Considerations

You could lose money by investing in a fund. An investment in a fund is not a deposit of a bank and is not insured or guaranteed. There can be no assurance that a fund's objective(s) will be achieved. Investors buying or selling shares on the secondary market may incur customary brokerage commissions. Please refer to each fund's prospectus and Statement of Additional Information for additional details on a fund's risks. The order of the below risk factors does not indicate the significance of any particular risk factor.

All or a portion of a fund's otherwise tax exempt interest dividends may be taxable to those shareholders subject to the federal and state alternative minimum tax.

ETF shares may only be redeemed directly from a fund by authorized participants in very large creation/redemption units. ETF shares may trade at a discount to net asset value and possibly face delisting.

The fund may invest in options using Bitcoin ETP Indexes as the Bitcoin Exposure Instrument. These indexes track Bitcoin ETPs on eligible exchanges, serving as benchmarks for Bitcoin ETP price performance. The fund faces risks related to index calculation, including potential inaccuracies in compilation, determination, or methodology, which may result in returns that do not accurately reflect bitcoin's performance.

A fund's investment in shares of bitcoin exchange-traded products ("ETPs") subjects it to the risks of owning investments underlying the bitcoin ETPs, as well as the structural risks. As a shareholder in bitcoin ETPs, a fund bears its proportionate share of the bitcoin ETP expenses, subjecting fund shareholders to duplicative expenses.

The fund's Bitcoin Reference Instrument is an Index, which tracks Bitcoin ETPs-exchange-traded products that aim to mirror bitcoin's price movements but are not registered under the 1940 Act, lacking its investor protections. Bitcoin ETPs may trade at prices above or below their underlying assets and carry risks similar to ETFs and direct bitcoin ownership. Their prices may deviate from bitcoin's actual price, and their short trading history makes them susceptible to volatility. Index calculation risks may also affect accuracy, potentially impacting the fund's performance.

An investment in a fund is subject to bitcoin risks which include, but are not limited to, the historically and potentially future extreme volatility of bitcoin, the risk of loss due to fraud, theft, manipulation or security failures and other various factors that impact the largely unregulated trading venues on which bitcoin trades. A significant portion of bitcoin is held by a small number of holders and transactions by these holders may influence and/or manipulate the price of bitcoin. If a malicious actor or group of actors were to gain control of more than 50% the mining power in a network (a "51% Attack"), even temporarily, they would have the ability to block new transactions from being confirmed and could, over time, reverse or reorder prior transactions which would significantly impact the value of bitcoin, and thereby the value of the bitcoin exchange-traded products held by a fund. The software that powers a blockchain is known as its protocol and the software may be subject to updates or changes. If one group adopts a proposed upgrade and another does not, a "fork" of the blockchain may result, wherein two distinct sets of users run two different versions of a protocol. A large scale fork could introduce risk, uncertainty, or confusion into the bitcoin blockchain or could fraction the value of the main blockchain and its native crypto asset, which could significantly impact the value of bitcoin, and thereby the value of the bitcoin exchange-traded products held by the fund. Finally, the bitcoin blockchain and its native crypto asset face numerous challenges to gaining widespread adoption as an alternative payments system and it is not clear whether the bitcoin blockchain can overcome this impediment. Alternative public blockchains have been developed and may compete with the bitcoin blockchain and it is possible they may be more successful in gaining adoption. Traditional payment systems may improve their own technical capabilities and offer faster settlement times with lower fees. This could make it difficult for bitcoin blockchain to gain traction as an alternative payments system and thereby negatively impact the price of bitcoin.

Securities of small- and mid-capitalization companies may experience greater price volatility and be less liquid than larger, more established companies whereas large capitalization companies may grow at a slower rate than the overall market.

Since at the end of each Target Outcome Period a new cap and buffer are established based on the then current price of the underlying ETF, an investor who holds fund shares through multiple Target Outcome Periods may fail to experience gains comparable to the underlying ETF over time or recapture losses from prior Target Outcome Periods and may have losses that exceed those of the underlying ETF.

A fund that effects all or a portion of its creations and redemptions for cash rather than in-kind may be less tax efficient.

Commodity prices can have a significant volatility and exposure to commodities can cause the value of a fund's shares to decline or fluctuate in a rapid and unpredictable manner.

Current market conditions risk is the risk that a particular investment, or shares of the fund in general, may fall in value due to current market conditions. For example, changes in governmental fiscal and regulatory policies, disruptions to banking and real estate markets, actual and threatened international armed conflicts and hostilities, and public health crises, among other significant events, could have a material impact on the value of the fund's investments.

A fund is susceptible to operational risks through breaches in cyber security. Such events could cause a fund to incur regulatory penalties, reputational damage, additional compliance costs associated with corrective measures and/or financial loss.

Certain securities are subject to call, credit, extension, income, inflation, interest rate, prepayment and zero coupon risks. These risks could result in a decline in a security's value and/or income, increased volatility as interest rates rise or fall and have an adverse impact on a fund's performance.

The use of listed and OTC derivatives, including futures, options, swap agreements and forward contracts, can lead to losses because of adverse movements in the price or value of the underlying asset, index or rate, which may be magnified by certain features of the derivatives.

Trading FLEX Options involves risks different than, and possibly greater than, investing directly in securities. A Target Outcome fund may experience substantial downside for FLEX Option positions and certain FLEX Option positions may expire worthless. There can be no guarantee that a liquid secondary market will exist for the FLEX Options and the FLEX Options may be less liquid than exchange-traded options.

A fund's return may not match the return of its underlying index. A fund invests in securities included in the index regardless of investment merit and the securities held by a fund will generally not be bought or sold in response to market fluctuations.

In managing a fund's investment portfolio, the portfolio managers will apply investment techniques and risk analyses that may not have the desired result.

Market risk is the risk that a particular security, or shares of a fund in general may fall in value. Securities are subject to market fluctuations caused by such factors as general economic conditions, political events, regulatory or market developments, changes in interest rates and perceived trends in securities prices. Shares of a fund could decline in value or underperform other investments as a result. In addition, local, regional or global events such as war, acts of terrorism, spread of infectious disease or other public health issues, recessions, natural disasters or other events could have significant negative impact on a fund.

Each sub-advisor of a multi-managed fund makes investment recommendations independently and they may not complement each other. This may result in an increase in a fund's portfolio turnover rate and higher transaction costs and risks.

A fund classified as "non-diversified" may invest a relatively high percentage of its assets in a limited number of issuers. As a result, a fund may be more susceptible to a single adverse economic or regulatory occurrence affecting one or more of these issuers, experience increased volatility and be highly concentrated in certain issuers.

Securities of non-U.S. issuers are subject to additional risks, including currency fluctuations, political risks, withholding, the lack of adequate financial information, and exchange control restrictions impacting non-U.S. issuers. These risks may be heightened for securities of companies located in, or with significant operations in, emerging market countries.

A fund and a fund's advisor may seek to reduce various operational risks through controls and procedures, but it is not possible to completely protect against such risks. A fund also relies on third parties for a range of services, including custody, and any delay or failure related to those services may affect a fund's ability to achieve its objectives.

A fund may invest in the shares of other funds, which involves additional expenses that would not be present in a direct investment in the underlying funds. In addition, a fund's investment performance and risks may be related to the investment performance and risks of the underlying funds.

Because of the Fund's involvement in reorganizations of closed-end funds that had elected to be treated as C corporations for U.S. federal income tax purposes ("C Corps"), it is subject to potential additional tax consequences. As a result of such reorganizations, the Fund may need to make distributions during its first taxable year attributable to C Corp earnings and profits, which would be treated as ordinary dividends. Depending on an investor's particular situation, the dividends may be qualified dividends eligible for a capital gains rate or the dividends received deduction if the investor is a corporation. Additionally, to the extent the ultimate nature of the tax position of any MLPs held by the closed-end funds prior to the reorganizations could not be known at the time of the reorganizations (due to the timing of the release of the MLPs' Schedule K-1s), it is likely that adjustments ("true-ups") will need to be made to the C Corp closed-end fund net asset values that had been estimated for purposes of the reorganizations, potentially resulting in additional and, depending on market conditions, potentially significant tax liabilities that would be borne by the Fund (as opposed to by the respective C Corp closed-end funds had such information been available prior to the reorganizations). Furthermore, such true-ups could necessitate additional taxable distributions or otherwise result in the payment of excise tax by the Fund. Shareholders of the Fund are subject to the foregoing risks and costs regardless of whether they had been a shareholder of a closed-end fund involved in a reorganization.

A fund with significant exposure to a single asset class, country, region, industry, or sector may be more affected by an adverse economic or political development than a broadly diversified fund.

Subsidiary investment risk applies to a fund that invests in certain securities through a wholly-owned subsidiary of the fund that is organized under the laws of the Cayman Islands ("Subsidiary"). Changes in the laws of the U.S. and/or Cayman Islands could result in the inability of a fund to operate as intended. The Subsidiary is not registered under the 1940 Act and is not subject to all the investor protections of the 1940 Act. Thus, a fund that is as an investor in the Subsidiary will not have all the protections offered to investors in registered investment companies.

Certain funds have characteristics unlike many other traditional investment products and may not be appropriate for all investors.

With respect to a fund of Target Outcome funds, each Underlying ETF's strategy seeks to provide returns based on the price return of the reference asset for shares purchased on the first day of a Target Outcome Period and held for the entire Target Outcome Period, subject to a pre-determined upside cap. Because the funds will purchase shares of the Underlying ETFs in connection with creations of new shares of the funds and during each rebalance, the funds typically will not purchase Underlying ETF shares on the first day of a Target Outcome Period. Likewise, the funds will sell shares of the Underlying ETFs in connection with redemptions of shares of the funds and during each rebalance, and such sales typically will not occur on the last day of a Target Outcome Period. A fund of Target Outcome funds does not itself pursue a Target Outcome strategy. The buffer is only provided by the underlying ETFs and the fund itself does not provide any stated buffer against losses.

The investment strategy is designed to deliver returns that match, or for the X series are approximately twice those of, the reference asset if a fund's shares are bought on the day on which a fund enters into the Flexible Exchange Options® ("FLEX Options") (i.e., the first day of a Target Outcome Period) and held until those FLEX Options expire at the end of the Target Outcome Period subject to a pre-determined upside cap, while limiting downside losses. If the Underlying ETF experiences gains during a Target Outcome Period, a fund will not participate in those gains on a one-to-one basis or beyond the cap. If an investor does not hold its fund shares for an entire Target Outcome Period, the returns realized by that investor may not match those a fund seeks to achieve. In the event an investor purchases fund shares after the first day of a Target Outcome Period or sells shares prior to the expiration of the Target Outcome Period, the value of that investor's investment in fund shares may not be buffered against a decline in the value of the reference asset and may not participate in a gain in the value of the reference asset up to the cap for the investor's investment period. A shareholder may lose their entire investment.
